Officer struck with brick; one man shot

By Brenda Bunting
Editor

"Scary" was the adjective used by Belle Glade Police Chief Michael Miller in referring to a confrontation between police and some people in a crowd on Sunday, Jan. 7. The incident ended with one officer suffering a concussion, and one man shot three times.

"Have you ever been in the middle of a crowd of 250-300 angry people?" the chief asked. "It's not fun."

Although Chief Miller said many were drawn to the altercation out of curiosity, a small percentage engaged in rock and bottle throwing. He had his officers leave the area to diffuse the situation and the investigation was handled later by the Palm Beach County Sheriff's Department.

Chief Miller says he arrived on the scene Sunday afternoon, shortly after an altercation between officers and a man being arrested escalated into violence. One of his officers was hospitalized with a mild concussion after being hit in the head with a brick and several other officers received minor injuries while trying to arrest a man outside the Hollywood Lounge on the corner of S.W. 5th Street and S.W. Avenue B about noon Sunday. Five police cars were also damaged.

Ralph Ramsey, 44, of Belle Glade was shot in the chest, elbow and hand by Officer Andrew Scott Drew.

Chief Miller said his officers had gone into the Hollywood Lounge to check for any illegal activity in or around the bar. "We've had a real problem with open drug sales in that area," he said. "The area has a long history of high crime and street level drugs," he noted, "but it has been more open in recent weeks and we've had complaints from citizens so we've been doing surveillance and have made some arrests."

After leaving the bar, officers Kelvin Folmar and Andrew Scott Drew were approached by Lovell Morgan, who identified himself as the owner of the bar. According to the probable cause affidavit issued by the sheriff's department, a heated exchange occurred between Lovell and the officers. During the exchange, a second man came from the crowd and punched Officer James Reid, who was also on the scene. Officer Reid attempted to arrest the man, later identified as Charles McCalla, but after a short struggle McCalla fled from the area with Officers Reid and Folmar chasing him.

McCalla was caught at S.W. Third Street and S.W. Ave. B and when he began to fight with the officers they called for backup. Sgt. Matthew Sweet and K-9 Officer John Owens responded from the police station and assisted in arresting McCalla.

Officer Drew had remained with the police vehicles near the bar and called the other officers on the radio for help. He said Ramsey had sprayed pepper spray in his face and after he knocked the spray out of Ramsey's hand with his baton, Ramsey started throwing bottles. He also threw a piece of cinder block, striking Officer Drew on the left side of the head.

Officer Drew said he then saw Ramsey with a small black handgun and he started to point it at him.

He said he told Ramsey at least three times to drop the weapon before firing at him. Ramsey was shot three times but was not captured. A short time later he drove himself to Glades General Hospital and was later transferred to St. Mary's Hospital in West Palm Beach, where he is listed in stable condition.

He has been charged with attempted murder of a police officer and resisting arrest with violence. McCalla was charged with battery on a police officer and resisting arrest with violence.

The state attorney's office is reviewing the case and the Belle Glade Police Department will also conduct their own internal investigation. Both are standard procedures in a shooting.

Officer Drew was treated and released from Glades General Hospital. He has been with the Belle Glade Police Department for about a month. He is on paid administrative leave until the investigation is concluded.

Ramsey has a previous record for attempted first degree murder and McCalla in the past has been charged with battery on a police officer. Lovell Morgan, who first confronted the officers and says he is the owner of the Hollywood Lounge, has no occupational license and according to Chief Miller was arrested twice in 1991 for delivery of marijuana over 20 grams and possession of marijuana over 20 grams.

Support collapses for two cent sugar tax

A new poll of Florida voters conducted by the national polling firm of Fabrizio McLaughlin & Associates show there has been a dramatic drop in support for a 2 cents-a-pound tax on Florida sugar farmers despite a multi-million dollar pro-tax advertising campaign.

From October 1995 until December, the poll shows support collapsed by more than one-third among voters and opposition to the $75 million-a-year tax proposal has nearly tripled.

Pollster Jim McLaughlin said that while the pro-tax group claimed in October that 71 percent of Florida voters supported the tax, the December poll shows that support has plummeted to 44.7 percent. At the same time, Mr. McLaughlin said, opposition to the tax has risen from 16 percent in October to 42.5 percent in December. The poll, conducted Dec. 20-21 on behalf of an alliance of sugar farmers, interviewed 600 registered voters. The margin of error was plus or minus four percent.

contributed by commodities broker Paul Tudor Jones, have run an advertising campaign similar to what would be required for a close governor's race," said Mr. McLaughlin. "Television ads have blitzed the airways statewide claiming that Florida's favor the proposed tax by a four-to-one margin."

More than 13 full-page newspaper ads were printed and hundreds of radio commercials trumpeted their cause. But, to no avail. The public in Florida simply isn't buying it."

Mr. McLaughlin said the most recent poll also reveals that most Floridians favor a non-tax alternative to solving Everglades problems. A majority of voters (55.8 percent) said "the Everglades can be protected without raising taxes of sugar farmers and costing Florida jobs."

Nearly three of four voters agree that Florida sugar farmers should be given a chance to clean up their share of the Everglades before a new tax is imposed. By a margin of 73.8 percent they agreed with the statement "since sugar farmers already have an agreement with federal and state officials to pay $300 million to restore the Everglades, we should give them the chance before imposing new taxes, costing jobs and throwing them off their land."

Nearly two of three voters believe that raising taxes only on sugar farmers in Florida is the wrong thing to do. By a margin of 66.3 percent, Floridians agree with the statement "instead of new taxes, the government should cut the waste and find the money needed for the Everglades another way. Raising taxes only on sugar farmers is wrong."

"Florida voters agree by a 63.3 percent margin that 'sugar farmers are already doing more than their fair share (of Everglades restoration) by paying $300 million...and government needs to worry more about fighting crime and improving schools," said Mr. McLaughlin.

The poll showed strong support for farming in Florida. Overall, more than eight of 10 voters (83.3 percent) said sugar farming was "important" to Florida's economy.

For 42.3 percent, farming was considered "very important." The poll also shows that 84 percent of voters disagree with the idea that "the best way to protect the environment is to stop sugar farming in Florida."

Mr. McLaughlin said voters also don't like extremists' answers to problems. "By a margin of 57.3 percent Floridians agreed that 'extreme environmental groups are going too far with their proposals to place a tax only on sugar farming.'"

Pahokee woman killed in shooting; Police issued warrant for suspect

Glynis King, 29, of Pahokee was shot and killed at approximately 1 a.m., Monday, Dec. 8.

According to police reports, Ms. King was driving her boyfriend's red, 1995 Chevrolet Blazer north on South Lake Avenue, Pahokee.

As the vehicle approached the intersection of South Lake Avenue and Fourth Street, her boyfriend said he spotted a black male standing on the corner of the intersection. As Ms. King and her boyfriend, Derrick Thomas passed by, the man shot into the left side of the vehicle.

At least two bullets hit the Blazer. One of the bullets struck King in her side causing her to swerve off of the roadway.

According to police reports, the suspect, Derrick Brown, then ran toward the vehicle and shot at least one more time into the vehicle. Thomas said the suspect opened the passenger door where he was sitting and pointed a silver-colored handgun at him. Thomas and the suspect had words and the suspect then walked away when he discovered that he had shot Thomas' girlfriend.

King was shot once in the left side and was pronounced dead at the scene by personnel from Everglades Ambulance Service.

Thomas was taken to the Pahokee Police Department where he gave a statement to police.

On Dec. 9, police interviewed witnesses who were parked on Booker Place, facing South Lake Avenue. The witnesses said they saw the incident as it occurred.

There is a warrant out for the suspect, Derrick Brown, 30, for first-degree murder on Glynis King and attempted first-degree murder on Derrick Thomas.

Mini-strokes

Several years ago one of my favorite residents at the nursing home where I worked suddenly began to have personality changes, became more forgetful and would frequently be "off in another world". She wouldn't remember the ever increasing incidents and was essentially unaware of what was happening to her. But we knew...it was probably a TIA. In medical-ese, that is a Transient Ischemic Attack, or a mini-stroke.

This is a temporary episode in which decreased blood flow to the brain causes symptoms similar to a stroke. The episode itself may last only a few minutes, but it is an important warning sign of an impending stroke. It actually increases the risk of a later stroke ten-fold.

Most TIAs are caused by a narrowing of the carotid artery (the main vessel that supplies blood to the brain) due to atherosclerosis, a build-up of fatty deposits (plaques) in the arteries. Typically, it occurs when plaque or a small blood clot further clogs the narrowed vessel, depriving the brain of essential blood and oxygen.

Several underlying conditions or risk factors promote the development of mini-strokes. These include: high blood pressure, which damages arteries and promotes clotting; high blood cholesterol; cigarette smoking; alcohol consumption.

The most common symptoms include temporary weakness, clumsiness, or loss of feeling in an arm, leg, or the side of the face; temporary loss of vision in one eye or double vision; temporary loss of speech or difficulty in speaking; difficulty in understanding speech, especially if combined with weakness on the right side of the body, dizziness or staggering.

It is important to seek immediate medical attention for any of the symptoms of TIA. If the patient's doctor cannot be reached, a trip to the nearest emergency room is warranted. Prompt treatment with anticoagulant drugs, or perhaps surgery, can often prevent a full-blown stroke. Several diagnostic tests that can help to diagnose TIAs are an arteriogram, a CT (computed tomography) scan, or MRI of the head, as well as lab tests, and an EKG.

Mini-strokes are ALWAYS a warning sign to seek medical attention. Although the person seemingly regains his or her normal functioning once an episode passes, TIAs are strong predictors of an impending stroke, which can be very disabling or fatal.

To avoid a TIA it is imperative to control high blood pressure and have it checked regularly, do not smoke and avoid alcohol, or use it only in moderation; lower high blood cholesterol by eating a low-fat diet, and ask your doctor about daily doses of aspirin. It is important to consult your doctor before beginning any treatment on your own.

Until next time...stay healthy and stay informed.

Meteorologists discover two new forms of lightning

By Mike Lyons

James Otis wanted to go out with a bang. The American Revolutionary hero from Massachusetts said when his time came he wanted to die as a result of a bolt of lightning.

Mr. Otis apparently had never heard the phrase to be careful what you wish for because it might come true. James Otis achieved his goal on May 23, 1783 when a bolt of lightning struck his chimney, roared through the house, and killed him.

James Otis did go out with a bang and each year lightning claims thousands of other lives around the world. Lightning is a spectacular but deadly product of nature that annually kills more people than hurricanes and tornadoes combined.

Until now, meteorologists always assumed that lightning only affected the earth. Each second, for example, about 100 lightning bolts strike our planet. But, now comes word from the American Geophysical Union that lightning may also affect outer space.

For the second time in less than a year, scientists have discovered a new form of lightning. Several months ago, researchers detected unusual bolts firing upward from clouds as high as 60 miles above the earth. They named this new form of flashes blue jets and red sprites.

Now, another form of lightning has been detected, and this one is strange. Believe it or not it looks like a green donut! This new lightning is called ELVES, an acronym for Emissions of Light and Very low frequency perturbations due to Electromagnetic pulse Sources.

ELVES were discovered last summer in America's heartland. Sixteen teams of scientists from three nations set up telescopes and other delicate instruments in the Rocky Mountains and started looking east.

What they saw was the unusual development of powerful thunderstorms so common to the central plains. Yet, when the scientists aimed their instruments higher into the atmosphere they saw something brand new—50 of the mysterious ELVES.

These saucer-shaped flashes materialize at an altitude of 50 to 60 miles. Once they're born it is off to the races. The ELVES take off laterally up to 250 miles and then downward as much as 40 miles—all in a blink of an eye. The ELVES seem to form almost immediately after a large powerful bolt of regular lightning strikes the ground.

Scientists believe these ELVES went so long without being detected because it is almost impossible to see them. Special equipment was used to detect their flash that is less than a thousandth of a second. Regular lightning can flicker for a second or two.

Now that they know they exist a lot of folks who have very little interest in weather are very interested in these ELVES. The CIA, for example, wants to know if ELVES might disable their high-altitude spy planes and satellites. NASA is curious about the ELVES possible effect on the space shuttle. Folks who do study the weather question if ELVES might affect global weather patterns and ozone depletion.

I learned a long time ago that there are six basic types of lightning - forked, ribbon, sheet, air discharge, a bolt from the blue, and ball lightning. Now, add two more to the list: blue jets/red sprites and ELVES.

I wonder what else is out there waiting to be discovered.

"They were valuable members to the team both in expertise and leadership," said Coach Schmidt. "It would have been impossible to choose between either one."

Eighth grader Eric Prescott was presented with the MVP trophy for the junior high team, who went 3-2 on the season.

"Eric was a great asset on both offense and defense," said Coach Eric Pitta. "He was a large part of our team's success."

Members of Glades Day Chapter of Fellowship of Christian Athletes donated some of their time over the Christmas holidays to participate in the Glades Harvest gleaming project. Bonita Rita Schoenfeld and about 10 members spent the day helping to pick-left over ears of corn to donate to needy families in the Glades.

"It felt good to be doing something to help others," said junior Laura Shiver. "Plus, we had a lot off fun working on a project together."

Glades Day's safety patrol members are constantly coming up with ways of raising money to help send the students and chaperones to Washington, D.C. during Spring Break, including dinners, drawings and selling doughnuts to hungry students during the break. Their next project is a spaghetti dinner to be held Friday, Feb. 2. Anyone interested in purchasing tickets for the dinner may contact the elementary office at 996-4140 (main campus) or 996-5598 (west campus).

PARENTS OF ATHLETES, PLEASE NOTE: Photographers from Myra Studios will be here next Tuesday and Wednesday, Jan. 16-17, to take pictures of athletes in football, volleyball, basketball and cheerleaders. If you are interested in purchasing pictures, order forms are available in the high school office. Payment must be made in advance.

Well, half the school year is over (already) and Glades Day School's students are taking their first semester exams this week. To help the students with their studies, GDS is having half days on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday. Monday will be a holiday to give both students and faculty a break before the new term begins Tuesday.

Congratulations are in order for Alfredo Treto and Zach Threlkeld, who were the recipients of the Most Valuable Player awards for the JV football team at the football awards program recognizing both the JV and junior high football teams Jan. 3.

Head JV Coach Dick Schmidt praised both boys' effort in leading the JV team to a 7-1 season

Pahokee needs CPR

This is a Speak Out from the once wonderful town of Pahokee. Who are these ethically challenged leaders of our city?

How did they get there? Where are they going? Are we citizens invited?

Pahokee needs major CPR, as in Citizens for Pahokee's Renewal. Let's start the process on neutral ground. If you want to give Pahokee CPR call your Speak Out into this paper. Fill up the pages with your frustrations, your cares, concerns, angers, hopes and memories.

Pahokee is not dead - just badly nourished. Think about this, most people who love Pahokee love a memory, not today's reality.

Thank you.

Alice Thompson, executive director for the Pahokee Chamber of Commerce responds: Pahokee needs nourishment and encouragement, not CPR. CPR says we've had a coronary and we're in need of an advanced life support specialist. In reality, Pahokee needs to collectively nourish the efforts of responsible citizens who have dreamed dreams, set priorities, and are faithfully and consistently working to fulfill those dreams. We, the Chamber, invite the writer and all others to volunteer to be a part of a team and get on board the "Dream Boat" that we believe will take us to our "Port of Paradise" - the Pahokee of the future!

Bus is needed

I'm a concerned citizen and I have three nieces going over to the new Belle Glade Elementary School. I feel they should have a bus to take those children to school because they come all the way from Avenue D to Avenue L and that is a long way for them to be walking.

I feel they should get someone out here on the school board to check it out and find out why they don't have a bus for these kids.

I feel it's very important because those kids are from kindergarten to fifth grade. My nieces are too small to be walking from Avenue D all the way to Avenue L. They have to cross two highways to get there and there is only one school crossing guard and that's down by the bridge and those little kids are not going to go way back down there in front of the old Belle Glade Elementary to get to school. They are going to go in front of the old Glades Central High School which doesn't have a school crossing guard and that is a busy highway at the time they are crossing the road.

Someone needs to contact the major news stations and have them follow these children and see how far they have to walk to school and how dangerous it is.

Response: The West Area Superintendent's Office, the School District of Palm Beach County, Belle Glade Police Department, Belle Glade Elementary School Advisory Council, the West Area Transportation Department, and concerned parents have given great consideration to the safety of all students attending the new Belle Glade Elementary School.

Four Belle Glade Police patrol cars are assigned at strategic locations and two school guards are on duty. Avenue H and Seventh Street are blocked to traffic two hours in the morning and two hours in the afternoon when students are enroute to and from school. The routes were researched and discussed at several meetings prior to the school's opening. All parents were notified to be present to voice their concerns. Residences within a two mile radius were not assigned buses. The exception to this rule involves safety. The City of Belle Glade is researching the possibility of constructing a sidewalk on N.W. Seventh Street and N.W. Avenue H. The children are entering the school's campus on Avenue H, which has limited traffic and is police patrolled. The distance from the old Belle Glade Elementary School to the new Belle Glade Elementary School is the same route with an additional three blocks (1/10 mile).

Education in the classroom and the safety of our students are two of our major concerns. We will continue to diligently address these concerns.

Gwendolyn Asia-Williams, Student Services Counselor
G. Eugenia Jones, Area IV Superintendent

Chief Michael Miller also responds: The safety of our children is my number one priority. To this end, the City of Belle Glade has assigned four school crossing guards and one police officer to ensure pedestrian safety at Belle Glade Elementary. One school crossing guard is assigned to N.W. 6th Street Bridge to direct children in the mornings and afternoons to the footbridge which is manned by two school crossing guards. N.W. 7th Street is closed to traffic for two hours in the morning and two hours in the afternoon. A police officer is assigned on N.W. Avenue L in front of Belle Glade Elementary to ensure safety in that area. The construction of a sidewalk along N.W. 7th Street is in the planning and engineering stage. The Belle Glade Police Department, West Area Administration and staff of Belle Glade Elementary, has been working closely together to ensure the safety of our children and we will continue to do so.

No underachievers here

This is from a Gator fan and parent. To the four brothers who played at Glades Day School, I feel very sorry for you if you played on a team that were underachievers.

But the kids from 1993-95 should never be considered anything but great football players. Thank you.

Guest Commentary Florida attracts large wave of foreign-born immigrants

By Cathy Keen
University of Florida News
Florida's newest wave of foreign-born immigrants comes from New York, not the shores of another country, a new University of Florida study finds.

Florida receives many immigrants who come to the United States and then move later to the Sunshine State. "New York is the No. 1 stopping off point for these immigrants, who are mostly Cubans," said June Marie Nogle, a research demographer at UF's Bureau of Economic and Business Research.

"State leaders who plan for the future must recognize that immigrants don't necessarily have to come directly from overseas," Nogle said. "Even if immigration flows were able to close our nation's borders tomorrow, Florida would still attract large numbers of foreign-born immigrants resettling from other parts of the United States."

Between 1985 and 1990, Florida received 200,480 foreign-born immigrants from other states and 258,291 from other countries. California, the only state with more resettling immigrants, drew 233,952 foreign-born immigrants from other states, a relatively small share when compared to the 1.2 million it received from abroad.

"The impacts will be much more dramatic in Florida because it receives nearly as many foreign-born immigrants from other states as California does even though its population is much smaller," Ms. Nogle said.

Compared to immigrants who move to other states, immigrants who resettle in Florida rank fifth lowest in college education levels, 19th lowest in personal income and second oldest in age, the study found.

"Florida captured more foreign-born immigrants from New York between 1985 and 1990 than any other state. In fact, the 63,849 immigrants from New York who resettled in Florida represented the largest single movement of immigrants between any of the states," Ms. Nogle said.

New Jersey ranked second, giving Florida 26,738 resettling immigrants during the same period.

The study's findings are from data collected as part of the 1990 census and released for the first time this winter. The results are not likely to have changed since 1990, given Florida's recent migration patterns," Ms. Nogle said.

Most immigrants who moved to Florida from other states were Cubans, the study found.

"When Cuban refugees came to the United States in the '60s and '70s, many refugee assistance programs tried to place them in various parts of the country by having local churches and communities sponsor the families," Ms. Nogle said.

"As many of these refugees get older, they are moving to Florida to be near family members who are already here or because they want to live in a place with a stronger Cuban ethnic community," she said.

"Research shows that immigrants find it easier and more enjoyable to live in places that draw large numbers of foreign-born people," she said. "This is especially important to non-native English-speaking immigrants or those who have an interest in a cuisine that calls for groceries otherwise difficult to find outside their ethnic neighborhoods."

Only 17 percent of foreign-born immigrants who move to Florida from other states have college degrees, the fifth lowest rate of any state in the nation, the study found.

"In contrast nationally, an average of 27 percent of immigrants from other states and 22 percent from abroad have college degrees. Some states have even higher rates. Nearly 40 percent of immigrants who resettled in Maryland were college graduates, largely holders of advanced degrees in the Washington D.C. area," Ms. Nogle said.

"Unlike Maryland, Florida's immigrants do not add to the state's educational level or assist its work force for tomorrow," she said. "States with highly educated immigrants are likely to have much less trouble adapting to the information economy of the 21st century."

The news may not be quite so bleak, though, because many of Florida's newcomers are elderly and probably plan to retire instead of entering the work force, she said.

The average personal income for foreign-born immigrants who moved from New York to Florida in 1990 was $15,412 and $13,628 respectively, less than the average of $16,754 for all resettling immigrants nationwide.

Glades Day honors football players

Senior Farris Shatara was presented with the Most Valuable Player trophy at Glades Day School's football awards program held Jan. 2 to recognize the 1995 varsity football team. The program, open to the entire Glades community, was held on the school's football field.

Mayor Steve Weeks opened the ceremony with a proclamation honoring the Gators on their State 2A football championship season. Head Coach Mandy Perez also acknowledged letters of congratulation from schools around the district and state.

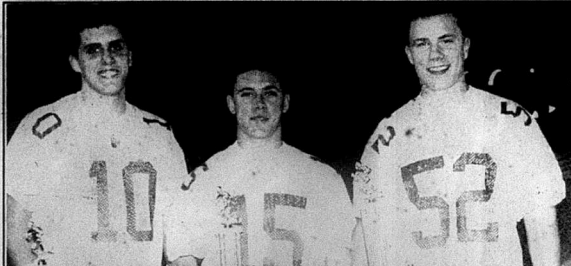

In awarding the MVP to Shatara, Coach Perez spoke of his contributions to the team throughout the season, both on offense and defense.

"Farris was definitely our 'go-to' man when we were having problems during the state game," said Mr. Perez. "He was very determined that we were going to win, and it set a great example for the rest of the players."

Coach Perez also credited eight other seniors on the team whose experience in the championship game two years ago helped set the tone for this year's title game.

"Two years ago they were just happy to be in Daytona," said Coach Perez. "This year they wanted it all and were willing to sacrifice a lot for it."

More on the same

"I would like to comment on a comment made a couple weeks ago about the brothers who played at Glades Day School who said they played with a bunch of underachievers."

Well, I'm sorry they did that, but the 1995 kids, none of those players are underachievers. Thank you."

Where's dear old Dad?

"I was disappointed that the pictures and captions of the

New Year's first babies did not include a father. Who or where is 'dear old Dad'?

Hope he's not Uncle Sam. Thank you."

Tired of waiting

"Are you as a consumer as tired as I, waiting for hours at a new franchise business in town to give you service? I believe Belle Glade people deserve better than they receive. We in Belle Glade deserve respect, courtesy, and prompt attention to our medical needs as consumers. We pay and deserve better.

There is a number to call for complaints. Until you do it, nothing will change."

Editor's note: We are unable to run the toll-free number for this business in Speak Out. We suggest if anyone has a problem with a local or franchise merchant, they first speak with the manager and if they are unhappy with the results, they can ask for the number of the parent company. Thank you for Speaking Out.

DON'T FORGET THE 1996 SOUTH FLORIDA FAIR JANUARY 12-28 LOCATED AT 9067 SOUTHERN BOULEVARD, WEST PALM BEACH.

Local youth pull corn during Christmas vacation, for the needy

Canal Point United Methodist Church was a busy site for our Youth on the first day of Christmas Vacation as they gathered to help those who are hungry. The youth remembered Jesus' words, "I was hungry and you gave me meat...in as much as you have done it unto one of the least of these my brethren, you have done it unto me."

It was with a sense of thankfulness to God for this opportunity to pull corn for the needy, that the youth started out to glean. The gleaming took place in a field of corn, which was donated for that purpose by a local farmer, Mr. Roger Hutton. It was facilitated through a national organization, the Society of St. Andrew, with the local representative, Mr. Roswell Harrington, coordinating the event. The church youth met with the Glades Day School Fellowship of Christian Athletes, and journeyed to the field together. After pulling corn for a couple of hours, a surprise visit by Mr. Dan Oliver, and Mr. Rick from Channel 12 TV News, gave the extra incentive to pull the corn faster, as Dan and Rick challenged the young people to a contest, to see who could pull the most corn in 15 minutes.

Although all the young people did exceptionally well, the team efforts of Ashley Brown and Jennifer Sulzer, from the Canal Point United Methodist Youth Group, were clearly the winners. It truly was a day when everyone was a winner, for the youth felt that they had given the most precious gift, the gift of time and love, to the needy, in Jesus name. The group from Canal Point United Methodist Church included: Nonie Sherman, Diane Wagner, Ashley and Ronny Brown, Joshua Fritz, William Campbell, Jennifer Sulzer, and their Pastor, Jackie McMillan. The Glades Day Fellowship of Christian Athletes included Peggy Altman, Patrick Altman, Laura and Janie Shiver, Jonathan and David Lively, Brian Watson and their sponsor, Rita Schoenfeld.

Accelerated Reader program begins at Glade View

Over one hundred fourth and fifth grade students have been selected to participate in the Accelerated Reader program that was introduced at Glade View Elementary this week.

Each student will be given the opportunity to set a goal stating the number of Accelerated Reader points he/she hopes to earn each month. The student, along with a parent and the Homeroom teacher, sign a contract agreeing to work towards the goal.

Students are expected to spend a minimum of twenty minutes at home each evening reading. After each book is read, the student then tests his/her knowledge and comprehension of the book by answering questions on the computer. The computer handles all scoring and keeps track of the Accelerated Reader points earned by each student. Students who earn ten points will celebrate with a Pizza Party in the Parent Center. At the beginning of each month the ten students with the most points earned will have a special lunch with the principal.

Funding for Accelerated Reader was made possible by a grant from the Forrest C. Lettner Foundation.

Today's Families Look To Simplify Their Lives

(NAPS) - With all the hustle and bustle in today's society, families are looking for ways to simplify their lives. More and more, they are turning to all-in-one products that address the needs of each individual family member.

A natural starting point is one of the most commonly shared areas of the home - the bathroom. Lever 2000 Deodorant Body Wash, a new arrival in bathing products, offers both deodorizing protection and moisturizers for the skin, making it ideal for everyone in the family.

Body washes are the fastest growing segment of bathing products for a number of reasons:

- They are often gentler on the skin than bar soaps
- Their warm ingredients create a superior lather compared to bar soaps and a wash cloth and
- A few, like Lever 2000 Deodorant Body Wash, have moisturizing systems that actually deposit moisturizer onto the skin.

With a new year and new beginnings, it may be time to streamline what's behind your shower curtain and include an all-family body wash.

The gannet is a large white sea bird with black-tipped wings. It often helps fishermen because it follows schools of herrings and other fish and thus shows where the fish are. The gannet dives from the air and plunges under the water for the fish.
